

ALUMNI PROFILE

Tori Taylor CMASAS Class of 2019

After completing her bachelor's degree in biology from University of Texas Rio Grande Valley in December 2022, Tori Taylor is navigating an exciting post-graduate journey. Her academic adventure at CMASAS has been marked by memorable experiences, with the standout moment being the unforgettable graduation ceremony in San Diego.

Opting for the flexibility of homeschooling, Tori discovered CMASAS to be a transformative chapter. Despite the online nature of her schooling, the institution played a pivotal role in cultivating a sense of community, providing a robust foundation for her future pursuits.

One of the cherished aspects of Tori's time at CMASAS was the formation of friendships. Whether through homeroom or participation in one of CMASAS' various clubs, Tori established connections that have stood the test of time and continue to thrive post-graduation. These relationships not only enriched her educational experience but also contributed significantly to her personal growth and prepared her for the world following graduation.

From Tori's unique perspective, CMASAS stands out as an exceptional choice for prospective parents, thanks to its student-centered approach. Unlike rigid educational systems, CMASAS excels in tailoring education to meet individual needs and preferences. This personalized approach creates an environment conducive to effective learning, allowing students like Tori to thrive academically and personally.

Tori's journey at CMASAS mirrors the institution's commitment to fostering community, individualized learning, and lasting connections. As she steps into the next phase of her life, Tori doesn't just carry a biology degree; she carries a wealth of experiences and relationships that will undoubtedly support her for years to come.
